Programme overview

MBA Leadership & Human Resources – an overview of the prestigious programme

Excellence & Mastery

Economic professionalism, substantial expertise, an aptitude for strategic planning, an innovative, interdisciplinary toolbox, a very active network, and personal leadership skills: The MBA programmes at the Quadriga University of Applied Sciences Berlin ensure the mastery and excellence required to meet the challenges posed by fundamental changes facing individuals, organizations, industries, and business models. On completion of our MBA courses, you're uniquely positioned for a leadership career in business or other institutions. The close alignment with current and future requirements of businesses, the dedication of leading protagonists, and the efficient integration of theory and practice mould MBA students into confident leaders for a future of unprecedented opportunity.

Head of the study programme

Professor Gärtner's research focuses on how HR impacts and is impacted by the digital transformation.

This involves studying the role of technologies (e.g., AI and RPA) but also new forms of work and organising. In addition to his broad experience in research and teaching, he has been working as a management consultant for more than 15 years.

Prof. Dr. Christian Gärtner

Professor of Business Administration, with a focus Digital Transformation & Leadership

What the programme offers you

The MBA Leadership & Human Resources programme qualifies for management functions in the area of strategic personnel and organisation development, particularly in fields of competence such as performance management, talent management as well as strategic organisational evaluation and development. The holistic curriculum allows graduates to take on leading positions with a strong cross-functional perspective in strategic HR management.

Benefits for your organisation

A repositioning of HR is associated with diverse and demanding tasks and requires mastery of three key areas of expertise: areas of expertise: general management, thought leadership in HR, and leadership skills. In a unique manner, the programme links management knowledge from all value-added processes with leadership and communication skills as well as the latest research insights into HR-related topics. The combination will help you to realise a new value proposition for HR within the company.

Diverse and experienced groups

As all students have advanced work experience, the peer-to-peer learning effect enables an important knowledge transfer of challenges and possibilities of different working fields.

Experts in the field

Learning from the best: Students get the possibility to connect with stakeholders, profit from their experience by being mentored in career matters and acquire all necessary knowledge to succeed in today's business world.

“For a long-term success a continuous performance- and potential-oriented Talent-Management-Process is very important. Every top leader has to achieve these competencies of talent-oriented thinking. The Chief Human Resources Officer is at the same time an architect, coach, transformer as well as a controller and needs to have a comprehensive knowledge of every corporate function. Therefore the MBA Leadership & Human Resources offers an excellent training.”

Manfred Grundke / Managing Partner, Knauf Gruppe

“It's becoming increasingly important in a leadership position to successfully operate at the intersections between society, science, economics, and politics. We need more cross-sectoral career steps and voluntary engagement in all aspects of society. The bundled experiences within the advisory board represent these criteria outstandingly.”

Dr. Katrin Krömer / Chief Director Human Resources & Leadership-Development, Deutsche Bahn AG

“I am very impressed by the amount of passion, commitment and joy professors and external lecturers have by sharing their knowledge and experience. Because of this knowledge transfer on eye level I was able to quickly earn valuable stimuli for myself and my company. For example I was able to question structures and processes between the Headquarter and our subsidiaries. In addition, I initiated proactive changes by launching an international HR governance.”

Wibke Thormählen / Head of Department Policies & Labor Law, ECE Projektmanagement G.m.b.H. & Co. KG, Alumni of the MBA Leadership & Human Resources
